

Eric V. Eve
Senior Vice President
Global Consumer Group, Community Relations

Eric Eve heads Citi's Global Consumer Group (GCG) Community Relations department. In this position, he advises Citi businesses on issues of importance to the community, while leveraging the corporation's resources to address key community needs. He also oversees all federal regulatory application of Community Reinvestment Act and Fair Lending obligations. In the U.S. and around the globe, his focus has been on building quality, long-term relationships with academic, community based and other nonprofit organizations. He joined Citi in March 2004.

Prior to joining Citi, Eric served as Vice President of Government Relations for Verizon Communications, where he managed Verizon's federal legislative efforts before the United States Senate, and coordinated efforts to establish a national broadband policy. He also managed the public policy relationship between Verizon and its labor unions.

Prior to joining Verizon, he served as Special Assistant for Political Affairs to President William Jefferson Clinton. In that capacity, he advised the President on political matters affecting the northeastern United States and African Americans nationally. He brought to that position experience gained in his role as the Head of Intergovernmental Relations for New York State Comptroller, H. Carl McCall. In between government and corporate work, he has managed political campaigns at both the local and national level.

Eric was recently appointed to the board of directors of both the Congressional Black Caucus Foundation and the Brooklyn Public Library. He holds degrees from Hobart College and the Graduate School of Political Management, City University of New York. He is married to Dr. Felicia Stenhouse Eve, and they, with their three children, reside in Brooklyn, NY.
